Preface

First and foremost I want to thank you for downloading this eBook. I believe there is nothing worse in life than not knowing why you were born. For years and years I went through the horrible process of trying to figure out what I wanted to do or discover the thing that I was good at and ultimately loved. This pain robbed me of 3 years of my life! Fortunately there was a glimmer of hope shining at the end of the tunnel.

During my purpose discovery process I experimented with a few things. I realized I loved music and writing because a friend of mine who started a blog got me doing the same. I chose to combine the two and song-writing was born. I was not exclusive with that as rapping was a talent of mine I used for years but did not take seriously. The reason for this was how tough the music industry was.

Despite not pursuing it wholeheartedly, I still wrote one article after the next on my blog. This newfound passion managed to stretch as far as 5 years and is still progressing! Having spoken to some friends both on and offline in passing about writing a book-while it was something we'd been talking about for years but never strived for-I chose to follow through with it. This eBook therefore serves to help anyone and everyone struggling to maintain (and not merely uncover) their desire for their craft because of the challenges that arise along the way. It includes the answers to questions like what is my passion? How can I keep from changing it constantly? What if I get mocked for my ideas or worried that someone steals them? Who do I know that has been where I want to be? This is something I am very enthusiastic about. I enjoy productivity and life management topics. It's always thrilling to read or hear stories of people who went from almost completely down in the dumps to earning a decent living, and more importantly through doing what they love.

This eBook is designed as an aid or tool for use in the growth of the particular area you may require assistance with. For example, if having a role model or finding a mentor is a challenge for you then chapter 8 is where you want to be. If you have a hard time perfecting your skills then pay close attention to chapter 5. While it is recommended that you go through the book in sequential order it is not necessarily created with that in mind. May you enjoy reading this material as much as I have loved writing it. Once again thank you so much and may you live a fulfilled life one day at a time.

Introduction

For as long as I can remember, that feeling of seeing the look in a child's eyes when you promise them something, it's so unbelievable. No matter what it is or in what form it comes, nothing beats the purity and innocence of unwavering faith. It reminds me of the story of Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego in the Bible when, against all odds, they refused to give in to the demands of the opposition. It would be more beneficial to die than to bow to a system they knew did not have their best interest at heart.

When you look at the child's face with confidence in your ability that speaks volumes-as if you possess untold riches-prevents the part of you that wants to crush their hopes with the hammer of reality. You would move mountains and cause miracles to happen to deliver on your promise, for nothing could break your heart more than witnessing the tears of disappointment.

It is like their belief in you is transferred to you so that your double portion enables you to do more than just deliver! That same belief is to be carried out through all of life. Except when faced with the harsh and brutal blows of reality, particularly when someone gives you one jab after another, from the disfigured appearance of their experience, you too become convinced that what was once always possible-no matter the cost-now seems improbable.

Your GIFT Should PAY YOU

This is why it is paramount to return to that childlike faith that recognizes no limits, understands no hindrance, is acquainted with no negativity, and knows no bounds! It is possible. It's always been possible.

Many times what tends to transpire is the wrong seed planted in the mind and thus the wrong words confessed with the mouth. As a result the wrong belief is stationed in the heart, leading to little or no action taken at all. Theodore Roosevelt mentioned that

At the time of this writing the world has experienced a paradigm shift. The earth is at a stand-still and at peace.

Free from pollution of all kinds, safe from abuse of its natural resources. This pandemic has caused many to rethink, and redesign their lives, and while online opportunities have been around for at least 2 decades, for most, this shuddering revelation has brought about a rude awakening! I believe there is no better time to be as creative, innovative and original as possible. It's not about the next big thing, a get rich quick scheme or running after anything that pops up on your screen, lands on your desk or is placed in your hands, but rather making a meaningful contribution to the world at large starting with your own, where you are, with what you have. Your only real limitation is how marketable you are. View yourself as a salesperson. Understand the value you are as a person and the value you carry with your skills. If you already sell your skills, ask yourself how you can scale it? How can you get more clients? If your skills grew into a business how can you gain more customers or clients? That should not be an afterthought, it is the priority!

As you read the chapters that follow, make careful note of your journey, and strategize the development and marketing process. First and foremost you are a seller. You will always have something to offer the world, it just takes opening everyone's eyes to that reality. The techniques you use to do that is what will determine your success. Your greatness is truly governed by your ability to market yourself. This book primarily focuses on discovering your talent-whether obvious or hidden-and why that is as big a deal as being a doctor, lawyer, programmer or being the chief of staff!

While you progress through the gift-revelation process keep at the back of your mind the fact that it exists to make a difference in a life, a neighbourhood, a community and the world. See yourself as the best salesperson of your talent. Keep reminding yourself that your talent is to be seen and worthy of being paid for. Never sell yourself short! Even if you fancy doing it for fun, consider the union of pleasure from production and payment. The internet has brought everyone together more so now than ever before. Take full advantage of that and enjoy the beauty of a life where you are paid by your gift!
